

ANNA LUPACCHINO WEEKEND SEMINAR

MARCH 24 - 25 - 26, 2017
Kelowna Dog Sport Centre
3345 Bulman Road, Kelowna, BC

ANNA LUPACCHINO has worked as a professional dog trainer since 1998 and is the owner of two dog training businesses, Allstar Agility and The Training Station School for Dogs, both located in Surrey, B.C. She is an insightful teacher who is committed to teaching owners how to train their canine companions with a positive and motivational approach to training. Her goal as an instructor is to help every handler/dog team reach their full potential.

Anna teaches all levels of agility and obedience classes, from puppies to master level dogs. She has many years of experience working with behaviour modification of reactive-type dogs, having lived with and trained many rescue dogs who have come to her with difficult pasts. She and her husband now live with their 3 shelter/rescue dogs. Each of her dogs has brought their own unique set of training issues to the table, and has shown Anna the importance of varying training skills to suit that particular dog's needs. Because of her ability to train all types of dogs, she has had some notable achievements with each one of her dogs, gaining titles in Agility, Rally Obedience and Tracking as well as many trips to the podium. She is actively involved in the AAC's B.C. Regional and National Organizational Committees and she recently earned her AAC Starter/Advanced judging title and has worked as a judge for the past year.

Descriptions of the sessions and costs are outlined on the following page.
